

Assignment - 7

1) Compare the cash flow and time weighted incremental cash flow

Cash Flow

Cash Flow is the movement of money in and out of a company, while Incremental cash flow is the net cash flow from all cash inflows and outflows over a specific time

Time weighted incremental cash flow

Time weighted incremental cash flow is a calculation that takes into account both the initial investment and the cash flow generated by the investments over time.

A cash flow statement that reports a company's Bandwe of cash over time. Cash received significant inflows and cash spent is outflows.

Cash Flow is measure the total cash inflow and out flow of a project or investment over life

Ignore the thing of Cash Flow

Focus on the total cash generated, without considering when it's received Incremental cash flow analysis can help management. Predict a business future cash flow takes on a new project.

measure the incremental cash flow of a project or investment.

relative to a baseline or a measure

Take into account thing of cash flow giving more weight to earlier cash flows

Focus on the present value of cash flows.

Considering the time value of money.